

SOFARM objectives

The aim of the project SOFARM: Supporting Social and Inclusive Farms project is to gain and exchange experience in the development of social farms and to motivate farmers to employ the socially disadvantaged in an effective and sustainable way.

The project responds to the generally low awareness of social farms and the situation where these farms are not able to sustain themselves in the long term. The intention is therefore to give farmers the necessary knowledge and skills to create new social farms or to develop existing ones.

Project Results

After an initial research of the situation in each country (workshops, expert interviews), the project partners from the Czech Republic, Germany, Poland, Slovakia and Italy will work together to produce condition paper, case studies, educational materials and short videos that will be used to inform farmers and the general public.
